AT A GLANCE

The board of the project Building a Proposition for Future Activities is looking for people to take part in the programming and planning of the Begegnungshaus Poppenbütteler Berg (Community Building Poppenbüttel 43). The project received funding and support from the Hamburger Bürgerschaft because its aim to enable encounters on par between new and old neighbours is projected to function as a model for continuing development of a metropolitan Hamburg. The board kicks off this project with two events in September 2017: 1) The Project Days and 2) The Architecture Competition.

WHAT HAPPENS DURING THE PROJECT DAYS ON SEPTEMBER 8TH AND 9TH?

Participants – old and new neighbours, international students enrolled in curricula concerned with the urban and industrial school students of different trades in construction – will enact the future Begegnungshaus Poppenbütteler Berg in their encounter according to a setting prepared by the Research and Teaching Programme Urban Design at HCU Hamburg in collaboration with Kristin Guttenberg (Community Building & Performative Dialogue), Marko Mijatovic (videography) and Mona Mahall (process drawing). This will take place on the actual construction footprint of the building measuring 20x20 metres in front of the 'information container' of the accommodation with dwelling in perspective (UPW) Poppenbütteler Berg / Ohlendieck. Prospective participants will collaborate for two days in engaging with the future uses of the Begegnungshaus Poppenbütteler Berg. The documentation of the Project Days will serve as raw and basic material for the Architecture Workshop.

HOW CAN I TAKE PART IN THE ARCHITECTURE COMPETITION?

The active players in the project selected five architectural practices that approach architecture 'not merely as a functional response to an urbanized society's needs, but as an activity of proposing, organising and representing how people might live together in the future' (Hesselbrand 2017, p. 150). ConstructLab (Berlin), In Situ (Basel), bromsky Architekten (Berlin/

Hamburg), Assemble (London) and Atelier Bow Wow (Tokyo) will each run a virtual architecture office for the architecture workshop beginning September 11th, 2017. These 6 days will kick off with colloquia informing about the project's past, present and future. The Architecture Competition on site will close with an interim presentation of all virtual architecture offices as a part of the Summer Fest organised by Poppenbüttel hilft e.V.. After these 6 days all architectural practices will be given a revision phase until September 27th to make sure they meet all issues raised in the tender documents.

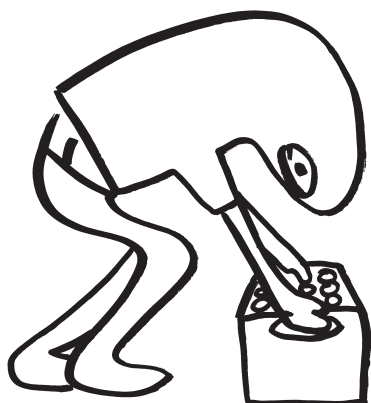

WHO CAN APPLY FOR PARTICIPATION?

The summer school Building a Proposition for Future Activities has shown that embodied skills, know-how and know-why in all stages of building and design processes are welcome. The Project Days and the Architecture Competition will be held in English, German and any languages that are spoken and understood by participants. The organizing committee is trying to find translators to allow all participants, refugees in particular, to fully understand the Project Days' issues at hand in order to be able to actively participate.

WHEN IS THE DEADLINE AND HOW DO I APPLY?

Applications can be submitted until August 25th, noon (UTC+1) via email or at the Information Meeting at HCU Hamburg, Überseeallee 16, 20457 Hamburg, room 3.109, 10.00 am. Please give your name, address, field of studies/training/profession in the form provided at the link http://ud.hcu-hamburg.de/content/2-about/3-documents/ud_summerschool_form.pdf and any information that outlines how the project would benefit from your partaking.
